

Echinacea 'Mac n' Cheese

Clear bright vibrant yellow characterizes this Echinacea. A lovely tasty combination of cheese and tomato in your garden if you team up these two will look stunning! Flowers are around 10cm across and very yellow indeed, a very intense colour for the more flamboyant of tastes! Even the cone of the flower is speckled deep yellow. Almost 'dwarf' in habit but not in flower size.

Dimensions: Height to 60cm Width to 60cm
Plant: Full Sun

Echinacea 'Tomato Soup'

Echinacea 'Tomato Soup' is a stunning Echinacea in the hottest vibrant red. This is a tall and vigorous Echinacea with well branched stems and masses of huge 12cm diameter tomato red flowers. Oh so breathtaking!! We have teamed it up with Echinacea Mac n' Cheese as the clear reds and yellows go so well together! Echinaceas are often grown for cutting and bringing indoors!

Dimensions: Height to 90cm Width to 80cm
Plant: Full Sun

Growing Situation and Care Notes

A number of posts on the internet talk about losses of Echinaceas and reluctance to flower. The upshot is that if you can manage them through the first winter then they will reward you for years to come. To help, buy big, well grown plants in bigger pots or pot up and give extra time to establish well before the winter. Water well but allow to dry out between waterings. Avoid at all costs low pH soils (ie very acid) as this is a sure way to kill an Echinacea. Also avoid waterlogging in winter so a sunny bank is a great spot for these lovely perennials.
