Growing Situation and Care Notes

Will tolerate full sun and dry conditions being Australians! They are tough, low maintenance and will tolerate extreme heat and dry. You should select an area to plant them with good drainage as you’d expect, these dry-lovers do not like wet feet! Do not bury the crowns. These plants will tolerate some frost, burning the foliage but underground rhizomes will survive and throw new growth in the spring. Some feeding and watering to establish them when young is a good idea for optimum performance
